To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., or 5 p.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

John Who?

Q. The names John Doe and Richard Roe are often used as examples, taking the place of a name. Just out of curiosity, why were these names chosen? And why both names, wouldn't one be sufficient? L.G., Long Beach.

A. Chief Justice Rolle in the reign of Edward III of England in the 14th century dreamed up the names for opposing parties in a hypothetical lawsuit. The names have been used ever since as imaginary examples or when a person's real name cannot be ascertained.

Wright Way

Q. In the Hollywood Hills, there is a magnificent house which resembles an ancient Egyptian temple. This structure is called a haunted house by some. Rumor has it that it was built by Bela Lugosi. Who really built the house, and who lives there now? R.S., Long Beach.

A. The house, at 2607 Glendower Ave., was designed by architect Frank Lloyd Wright in 1924 for the Charles Ennis family, says the architect's son. (For pictures, see the Nov. 1955 issue of House Beautiful.) It was patterned after Mayan temples and made out of concrete blocks so as to be fire and earthquake proof. Wright described his use of concrete in the book, "Frank Lloyd Wright: Writings and Buildings": "We would take that despised outcast of the building industry — the concrete block — and make it live as a thing of beauty, textured like the trees. The building would be made of the blocks as a kind of tree itself standing at home among the other trees in its own native land." The Ennis house stands high on a hilltop. It has 4,720 square feet of living space. The Ennis family owned the spacious house until 1936. Since then, seven different families have occupied it. Lyle Corcoran, the present owner, bought the house in 1956, and now has it for sale for $175,000. The house was never owned by actor Bela Lugosi, but Bela Lugosi Jr. says his father did own a house in the Hollywood Hills. How the Ennis house came to be known as haunted is anybody's guess. However, the outside of the house was used in a horror movie scene once and, occasionally on weekend nights, the wailing of high school pranksters can be heard in the neighborhood.

What a Racket

Q. A few years ago I bought a jar of miscellaneous buttons from a Goodwill Industries store. Among them was an oval-shaped medal with an eagle, a portion of the American flag and the words, "McFarland & Co., Stuart, Iowa, 1911." Can ACTION LINE give me any clue as to the history of this medal? R.M.S., Torrance.

A. According to an old timer at the Stuart City Hall, McFarland & Co. was a racket store — known today as a dime store. After its founder died, the store folded. His daughter, Ann McFarland, is still living but is quite elderly and too ill at the moment to be questioned about the origin of the medals. It is thought they were issued in honor of a special anniversary or sale.

You Are My Sunshine

Q. Is Eileen Brennan on Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In the same Brennan who played the title role in "Little Mary Sunshine" on Broadway? If so, where may I write to her? E.S., Buena Park.

A. It's the same girl. Then a brunette, Miss Brennan got the lead role in the off-Broadway play after the show producers spotted her singing Irish songs in a New York nightclub, says Bob Taylor of the NBC publicity department. "Little Mary Sunshine" was the comedienne's first professional stage appearance. From there she went on to appear in "The Miracle Worker," "The King and I," "Student Gypsy" and "Hello, Dolly!" The Los Angeles-born star was educated at Georgetown University and the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. You can write her c/o Laugh-In, NBC Studios, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif.

Action Line

Locked In

Q. My husband is interested in becoming a locksmith. Can ACTION LINE tell us if there are any locksmith schools in the area? H.W., Long Beach.

A. According to Carl Bagle, owner of Carl's Lock & Safe Shop in Garden Grove and president of the California Locksmiths' Association, the only way to learn the trade is by becoming an apprentice in a lock shop and learning on the job. There are no locksmith schools in this area and Bagle is unimpressed with correspondence courses offered. If you choose to look for an apprenticeship in the cities of Los Angeles or Pico Rivera, you will need a police permit if you will be doing work outside the shop. A spokesman for the Los Angeles Police Department explained to ACTION LINE that to help keep knowledge of the locksmith trade from potential burglars and safecrackers, they screen permit applications carefully and make an extensive security check. If, however, you work inside the shop exclusively, no permit is required.

SOUND OFF!

Why can't Long Beach synchronize street cleaning no-parking times with trash pick-up days? Sometimes the way the cars are parked on our street, the trash men aren't able to get access to the trash cans so they just leave them for the following week. Mrs. R.A.F., Long Beach.

CSLB PROF'S SUSPENSION CITED

College System of Disciplining Blasted

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO

From Our National Bureau
WASHINGTON — The American Association of University Professors Friday issued a rebuke that could hamper recruitment of professors by the California State College System.

The Association, conducting its 54th annual meeting here, expressed its "disappointment and disapproval" of the handling of the disciplining of a professor at Long Beach

State College four years ago.

While the action fell short of association censure, which was imposed on nine schools in other states at the session, officials of the association said a practical effect would be to make AAUP members shy away from offers of positions in the system.

The rebuke was directed at Glenn S. Dumke, chancellor of the entire state college system, as well as Carl W. McIntosh, president of the Long Beach college.

The action was taken on the procedure followed in handling the so-called Long Beach navel engagement—stomach-to-stomach confrontation between two business professors at Long Beach in dispute over a procedural matter.

McIntosh recommended that one of the participants, Prof. Vernon A. Metzger, be discharged. Dumke later modified this to a month's suspension.

The association's Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure said that McIntosh and Dumke acted without due process of law since the college's Academic Senate made up of professors there had not acted on the case. The senate later recommended no discipline.

Committee Chairman Sanford H. Kadish, a law professor at the University of California in Berkeley, said the group decided against censure in the case since the local and statewide college administration is in the process of "developing sound standards of procedure."

Further, he explained, no similar situation has developed in the system during the ensuing 4 years.

The committee's recommendation was accepted without dissent from the 508 delegates.

The rebuke can be rescinded later by the group if it is satisfied that the new procedures are sound and, probably, if Metzger is given restitution for the suspension.

Two Long Beach delegates, Charles Roberts and Leo Goodman-Malamuth, came to the convention with a "consensus" from their local chapter that they seek censure in the case. Neither took the floor, however.

Roberts said he believes the action taken "is the best solution all the way around," but "I guess I'll catch hell when I get home."

SANDPILE DEATH

Firemen hunt for 10-year-old Joseph Cecil in the sandpile of a construction material yard in Chicago. Robert Love, 15, cries, and his younger brother, Allan, 9, appears stunned by tragedy. The boys came upon a trapdoor, opened it, and the rush of sand through the doorway carried Joseph to his death.

Riot Control Command Post Established in Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford ordered Friday that a special riot control command center be set up in the Pentagon.

The new unit will swing into action any time it appears federal troops may be needed to help put down U.S. city disorders.

An Army three-star general was named to head the agency, the Directorate of Civil Disturbances Planning and Operations.

His principal aide will be an Air Force two-star general thoroughly versed in airlifting troops around the country. Navy and Marine officers also are being assigned to the directorate.

Creation of the office in the basement of the Pentagon comes as a result of the increasing need for military troops in controlling disorders.

CLIFFORD SAID that although basic responsibility in quelling riot rests with state and local police, "prudence dictates" that the Pentagon be capable of offering "prompt and effective supplementary law enforcement assistance."

The directorate will not command troops but will be responsible for lining them up and getting them on the scene of riots as rapidly as possible, as well as super-

Hanoi Drags Feet on Talks Site

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic sources said Friday North Vietnam is evidently in no hurry to begin talks with the United States despite its loud complaints that its efforts are being frustrated by alleged American foot-dragging.

Reports of go-slow tactics by Hanoi coincided with a new Soviet charge that the United States was deliberately delaying talks. A Soviet Tass news agency dispatch alleged that Washington is "playing a game of towns" while awaiting a favorable turn in the tide in the military situation in Vietnam.

Radio Hanoi said early today the official Hanoi Daily Nhan Dan again charged the United States with stalling agreement on

At one point the students laid fire hose in the first floor hallways, apparently prepared to use them against efforts by campus police to oust them. The hose was neatly hung up at the end of the siege, which lasted about four hours.

THE STUDENTS told newsmen their dissatisfaction stemmed from an incident Wednesday night when four Negro coeds allegedly were removed from a campus bus by four policemen.

The driver allegedly told the coeds to "shut up" a conversation about black student problems.

Then on Thursday night a group of Negro students went to the campus police headquarters to protest the incident. They said they tried to force their way into the office and that an Ohio State assistant business manager grabbed one girl by the neck.

These incidents, the Negro students said, prompted Friday's demonstration.

Titian Work Stolen from Italian Church

MEDOLE, Italy (UPI) — One of Italy's most valuable art treasures, a late work by the 16th century master Titian, was reported stolen Friday from a small church in this North Italian village. Art authorities estimated the value of the painting at $480,000 to $800,000.

The painting, entitled "The Resurrected Christ Appears to His Mother," was executed by the Venetian renaissance master Titian when he was 86 years old.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Militant Columbia University students who seized five campus buildings Friday night rejected faculty proposals to settle the campus rebellion.

The intense negotiations appeared to fail over student demands for amnesty for strike leaders after the four-day campus dispute is settled. In the background on the normally peaceful campus lurked the possibility of violence.

City police had sealed off the Columbia campus earlier in the day while members of the faculty urged strike leaders to accept a Student-Teacher-Administration Committee to resolve issues outstanding in the dispute.

But Mark Rudd, chairman of the Columbia branch of the leftist Students for a Democratic Society, emerged from talks and declared the Students' Strike Coordinating Committee had rejected the faculty proposal to let the committee determine punishment for the maverick students.

Rudd called the amnesty a "key issue." "We cannot negotiate with a sword over our heads," he said. "At the same time he added, 'we'll talk with anybody.'"

The students rebelled over construction of a college gymnasium on prime Harlem recreational land and Columbia's ties with a Defense Department project to aid the Vietnam War.

Prior to Rudd's press conference, professor Neal Hurwitz, a member of Columbia's government department, predicted that if the students rejected the faculty proposal for a spe-

Saigon Set for Attack

Combined Wire Services

SAIGON Saturday — Seven waves of B52s dumped hundreds of tons of block-buster bombs on Communist positions around Saigon's doorstep Friday and today. The capital was tensed to rebuff a major guerrilla offensive. National police Friday warned of a new Viet Cong invasion of Saigon and reported Communist infiltrators were hauling weapons and ammunition into the city.

The Air Force's controversial F111A fighter-bombers resumed raids against North Vietnam Friday after being grounded for a second time. In ground action, U.S. Marines pushing out of their demilitarized zone base at Con Thien ran head on into a large force of dug-in Communists and reported killing 72 in a three-hour battle. At least nine Marines were killed.

3,660 U.S. Aircraft Lost

SAIGON — The U.S. has lost 3,660 airplanes and helicopters in the Vietnam War, U.S. headquarters reported Friday. The tally included 827 planes lost over North Vietnam, 250 planes shot down over South Vietnam, 1,066 planes lost to nonhostile causes, 640 helicopters shot down over South Vietnam, nine over North Vietnam and 928 lost to nonhostile causes.

Cong Flags Fly Over Paris

Left-wing students protested American Vietnam policies Friday with widely scattered demonstrations that included raising of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese flags over three famous landmarks in Paris. The Communist banners flew for a short time over the Notre Dame Cathedral, the Arc de Triomphe and the Eiffel Tower before authorities hauled them down. In Tokyo, more than 3,000 militants demonstrated. More than 5,000 Czech students smashed windows at the American Embassy in Prague.

Mystery Gas Plagues Island

HONOLULU — A mysterious gas has forced officials on Wake Island to declare parts of the island off limits, the Honolulu Star-Bulletin said Friday. The gas, first noticed in February, has sent as many as 60 persons a day to the dispensary. Officials think it may be coming from gas-filled cylinders which the Japanese are known to have had when they occupied the atoll from December 1941 to 1945.

Israel Warns Jordanians

Israeli and Jordanian troops Friday exchanged tank, mortar and machine-gun fire across the River Jordan in their 10th border clash this week. Israel warned it would carry the war to Jordanian soil if the Arabs continued guerrilla attacks.

Britain Dumps the Fathom

LONDON — The Royal Navy has been ordered to do away with fathoms on its nautical charts. A directive Friday ordered changing the traditional six-foot-depth markings for measurements in meters.

MADE AN IMPRESSION

President Johnson chose a newly painted garden bench Friday for a political huddle with a top Democratic leader. The result showed.

After a ceremony installing W. Marvin Watson as new postmaster general, Johnson led Ed Weisl, New York Democratic national committeeman, to a white, wrought-iron bench on the White House lawn. There they sat until the President was summoned into the White House. Weisl left, carrying an imprint of the conference on his trousers and coat — a white bench design.

Johnson's impression of the meeting was not seen.

HITCHIN' UP

Actor James Drury will marry former actress Phyllis Mitchell today in Westwood Hills Christian Church. Drury, 32, stars in "The Virginian" television series.

DRURY ROBERTSON

NOSE DIVE

Actor Cliff Robertson suffered a possible broken nose Friday when his plane crashed north of Castaic during a film scene.

Robertson's old DeHavilland Tiger Moth hit power lines about 50 feet up, flipped over and plunged to earth. Robertson, husband of actress Dina Merrill, scrambled from the plane without help.

FACES TRIAL

Thomas Nelson Truax, Bay Area regional government official accused of taking half a million dollars, arrived Friday in San Francisco under guard from Palm Beach, Fla., to face trial.

INTO INFERNO

A mother got three children out of a burning house but went back for three more and died with them gathered around her.

Mrs. Doyle Rogers, 27, of Lincoln City, Ore., screamed and awakened her son Jerry, 5, early Friday when she smelled smoke. He got his brother Johnny, 3, Mrs. Rogers handed him Janalee Brink, 8 months, and shoved all three outside.

Then she went back upstairs and was trapped. Her body was found kneeling by a bed. Around her were the bodies of Jeffery Doyle, 3, twin of Johnny; Julie Doyle, 4, and Jonilyn Brink, 5.

CRIMINOLOGIST

Joseph D. Lohman, 58, dean of the school of criminology at the University of California and an international authority on police and social issues, died Friday in Walnut Creek of a heart attack.

Lohman, former state treasurer of Illinois and former sheriff of Cook County (Chicago) Ill., had been at one time or another a consultant for virtually every major police department in the nation.

BRUTALITY

A Florida father was sentenced Friday to 18 years in prison for beating his son to death and a mother was given a one-year term for starving her son into a "walking skeleton."

Truck driver Walter Dice, 28, of Fort Lauderdale, was accused of giving 4-year-old Harold Dice a six-hour beating because he did not return 60 cents change after buying ice cream.

At Miami, Mrs. Demetrio Puente was sentenced on charges that she kept her emaciated son, Kelly, 4, in a makeshift cage and starved him until, an officer said, he "looked like one of the walking skeletons of Dachau." Kelly's weight was 14 pounds, 11 ounces, that of a six-month-old child.

MISCONDUCT

A Bakersfield Superior Court jury Friday found controversial Kern County Auditor Controller Ray Theuer guilty of four counts of willful misconduct in his $18,000-a-year post.

Theuer, 45, was indicted in 1967 on counts of failing to compute taxation figures as required, refusing to file a county budget or examine the county treasurer's books and conduct a cash count of the treasury funds, and imposing new procedures on county departments without advance warning.

DORIS DEMURS

Actress Doris Day, 44, declined Friday to be appointed administrator of the million-dollar estate of her late producer-husband, Martin Melcher.

Melcher, 52, died in Mt. Sinai Hospital last Saturday. Miss Day's son, Terence Melcher, 24, a music producer, was named administrator in his mother's place.

HE'LL COLLECT

Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain will receive libel damages for an American newspaper article which reported rumors about his personal life, a British high court ruled Friday.

There was no immediate announcement of how much Wilson would collect from the Delaware-based publishers of the International Herald-Tribune, published in Paris.

DRUG ARREST

American folksinger Julie Felix was charged Friday night in London with possessing marijuana.

The Winnah

Judy Wagner, who flew solo from Managua, Nicaragua, to Panama City, Fla., in a Beechcraft Bonanza K35, was declared the winner for the second straight year Friday in the 11th annual "Angel Derby." The lady pilot from Palos Verdes flew her craft at an average speed of 199.393 miles per hour over the four-day trip. She received a trophy and a check for $1,000.

Janice Hobbs of Brookhaven, Miss., was second. Third place went to Pat McEwen of Wichita, Kan.

TSK, TOUGH

Ford Motor Co., shut down by strikes for two months last year, disclosed Friday that it omitted paying bonuses to its top executives in 1967 for the first time in 10 years.

The top salary of $200,000 went to Chairman Henry Ford II, who in 1966 received $415,000 in bonuses alone.

Semon E. Knudsen, who jumped from an executive vice presidency at General Motors Corp. to the presidency of Ford early this year, was guaranteed an annual base salary of $200,000 a year for five years and also received 15,000 shares of Ford stock, worth about $750,000.

RUMOR DENIED

The White House said Friday that President Johnson was in "excellent health."

Asked about rumors of poor health—including one that the chief executive planned to resign because of it—White House Assistant Press Secretary Tom Johnson said: "Dr. George Burkley (White House physician) says he is in excellent health."

KIRSCHKE WINS ONE, LOSES ONE

Former Los Angeles County Deputy District Attorney Jack Kirschke, convicted in January of the "love nest" murders of his wife and her paramour, went to court Friday and won the right to represent himself at a hearing on a motion for a new trial. But Superior Court Judge Kathleen Parker denied a second Kirschke bid, to act as his own spokesman on the motion. Instead, Judge Parker ruled, Kirschke's new attorney—George T. Davis of San Francisco—will do the honors on June 7.

First Conviction in Friars Case

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—Edwin Nathaniel Gebhard, 54-year-old Miami electronics engineer, was convicted late Friday on 15 counts of lying to a federal grand jury. The perjury charges grew out of Gebhard's testimony during the grand jury's investigation of alleged card cheating at the Beverly Hills Friars Club. The jury found Gebhard innocent of four other counts of perjury, and declared itself deadlocked on two counts. Gebhard will be sentenced June 3 by U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hauk. The judge, on motion of defense attorney Harold Ungerleider, granted judicial acquittal in the two counts upon which the jury was deadlocked. Gebhard originally was indicted on 32 counts of perjury but Judge Hauk dismissed 11 counts before the jury began deliberations. GEBHARD will remain free on $5,000 bail. According to the grand jury transcript, admitted into evidence at the trial, Gebhard admitted he installed "peek-holes" in the ceiling of the club's card room, but claimed he didn't put them there for the purpose of cheating.

Orange County Superior Court Judge Robert Gardner Friday continued to May 8 a hearing for Mrs. Elsie Wickman, charged with killing her veteran police sergeant husband with his own service revolver. Mrs. Wickman, through her attorney Theo. Lacy, asked that the murder charge be dropped and her $10,000 bail reduced. Gardner denied reduction of the bail at this time, but continued that question as well as the motion to dismiss the charges. The 40-year-old Garden Grove woman is accused of killing her husband in their home, 11872 Percheron Road, April 7.

Huntington Beach Sailor Gets Point—Just in Time

A 22-year-old Huntington Beach sailor and two friends learned the hard way about the exchange rate between Hong Kong and U.S. dollars. After a mile ride in a Hong Kong taxi cab with no decimal point on its meter, the trio handed over 200 Hong Kong dollars ($31) and received 10 Hong Kong dollars change when the meter showed 190. Two hours later it dawned on Yeoman 2/C Sevastian Rabasa of 6828

Cedar Street, Huntington Beach, Navy Airman George T. Heller, 19, of Riverdale, Ill., and Administration Assistant 2/C Walter Arnold, 36, of Denver, that the fare should have been HK$1.90—31 cents American. Police were able to trace the driver who was sentenced to a month in jail for larceny after making restitution to the sailors. The three Navy men then went back on the town, having gotten the point about decimals.

LEGAL WHITE ELEPHANT Lee Murder Attempt Case No Closer to Solution

By BARBARA KNESIS
Orange County's complicated Robert E. Lee attempt murder case—which has turned into a legal white elephant—was no closer to being resolved Friday despite three new court actions. Judge Samuel Dreizen will reconsider the three legal maneuvers at 9:15 a.m. Thursday. The case has touched off heated debate on the confidential attorney-client relationship and pitted the Anaheim Municipal Court against the county district attorney's office. Legal complications grew out of the April 16 grand jury indictment proceedings against Lee for the attempted March murder of Mrs. Marie Suiro, 42, of La Habra.

IT WAS during these proceedings that District Attorney Cecil Hicks produced a pair of bloodstained shoes he had confiscated—using a search warrant—from the chambers of Anaheim Municipal Judge Logan Moore. The shoes had been given to the jurist for safekeeping by Lee's public defenders, Bernard November and Lawrence Buckley.

The next day the grand jury turned down the indictment against Lee. Anaheim Municipal Judge Lloyd Verry, who earlier ruled the shoes could not be used as evidence until the court determined Hicks' right to submit them, cited him for contempt of court. The district attorney immediately countered with a "cease and desist order" against Judge Verry. As Friday's events unfolded: The Anaheim Municipal Court was forced to turn to private counsel Ron Tiday of Garden Grove to represent the court. Superior Court Judge Raymond Thompson delayed action until Thursday on a demurrer that would remove the Lee case from the Anaheim Court domain. In so doing, Thompson granted a motion by Tiday that the request be held over and consolidated with two other legal maneuvers, including a writ of prohibition to prevent the Municipal Court from proceeding with charges of contempt against Hicks. Superior Court Judge Robert Gardner continued until May 2 the arraignment of Lee at the request of his attorney, Ronald Owens of Santa Ana, but not before wryly commenting "Is this THE case?"

THEN GARDNER turned to Lee and said, "You have become famous." Public defenders November and Buckley and their chief investigator, John (James) Bond, who uncovered the shoes, were ordered to show cause Friday in Superior Court why they should not be cited for contempt. The charges against the three men stem from their refusal to answer questions put to them by the grand jury about the shoes. The three held that questions would violate the confidential client-attorney relationship. The trio have since been taken off the case by the Anaheim court. LEE IS now being represented by two private attorneys, Owens and Robert Fraser, of Anaheim. Throughout the proceedings, Hicks has maintained the attorney-client relationship has to do with conversation and not physical evidence such as the shoes. November, Buckley and Bond have hired attorney Dudley Gray of Torrance to represent them.

$125,000 DEFICIT McCarthy Camp in Financial Bind

New York Times Service

NEW ALBANY, Ind. — Twelve days before the Indiana primary election, the campaign of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., has run into financial trouble.

McCarthy gave just a glimpse of his difficulties Friday when he was asked at a news conference in Evansville whether he had a financial problem and whether he had enough money in prospect for the Indiana, Nebraska, Oregon and California primaries.

"We don't have enough money to do everything that we want to do," the Senator replied, "but on the other hand, I don't think we have to do everything that other people have to do."

The Senator's problem, however, is whether he is going to have enough money to do the things that he has to do in a campaign based largely on the canvassing by student volunteers that proved so effective in New Hampshire and Wisconsin.

In the last few days Arnold Hiatt, president of the Green Shoe Company of Boston, who has been acting as McCarthy's national campaign treasurer, has discovered that the financial situation was not so sanguine as the financial headquarters in Washington thought it to be.

"Although McCarthy has responded to reporters' questions about finances by saying 'we live off the land' and 'we are paying our own bills,' the fact is that there is still a deficit of $25,000 for the New Hampshire campaign and $100,000 for the Wisconsin campaign.

Two things underscore how tight the Senator's money situation has become. The 18 salaried members of the staff in Indiana have not been paid for the last few weeks. The 220 full time non-salaried staff members who receive $5 a day for meals and room allowance were paid last week for the first time in two weeks. These full-time workers man the headquarters in Indianapolis and the 74 storefront local offices throughout the state.

A much larger item, about which it is also worried, is the cost of television and radio time for political ads during the last two weeks of the campaign. But this is such a priority item that the money will probably be found to meet these heavy charges.

Nevertheless, the situation became so critical that three days ago Hiatt sent out a number of urgent telegrams to people of means, some of whom had already made contributions, appealing for money. These telegrams brought in $75,000 in two days.

Cabinet Told to Stay Out of Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has ordered his cabinet members and all other presidential appointees to stay out of the Democratic nominating struggle this year, the Washington Post said Friday.

They are specifically included, the Post said it learned, in the President's pledge of March 31 that he would "not permit the presidency to become involved in the partisan divisions that are developing this political year."

Accordingly, they are being instructed at department meetings called by cabinet members to "observe the spirit and letter" of the March 31 declaration, the Post added.

Reagan Cheered in Idaho, Gets Strong GOP Backing

By LOU CANNON

From Our State Bureau

BOISE, Idaho — Gov. Ronald Reagan, vying with former Vice President Richard M. Nixon for GOP affections, conferred privately Friday night with Oregon backers of his undeclared presidential candidacy and then won a tumultuous public reception from Idaho Republicans.

Reagan told more than 20 leaders of his campaign in the free-for-all Oregon primary that he would not actively seek the nomination but was available if the party wanted him.

HE ALSO spoke to some 200 partisans who greeted him with a "Reagan in '68" sign at a cold and windswept evening at the Boise Airport and then addressed a cheering, foot-stomping crowd of 1,600 Republicans at a $50-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

The GOP partisans, some of them waving "Reagan for President!" signs, punctuated both at the beginning and the end of his speech.

Reagan's meeting with his Oregon backers was carefully engineered by Bob Hazen, a Portland savings and loan executive who four years ago managed the successful Oregon primary campaign of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

After conferring briefly with Idaho Gov. Don W.

Samuelson and other GOP leaders, Reagan held a separate meeting with the Oregon delegation headed by Hazen. Some members of the Oregon group said that Reagan's declaration of "availability," first announced Tuesday at a Sacramento press conference, would give a boost to the campaign for the California governor.

REAGAN crossed campaign trails with Nixon on the same day for the first time Friday.

Nixon Accepts Reagan Tour as GOP Service

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) —

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Friday he expects Gov. Ronald Reagan to gain support for a presidential bid during his forthcoming cross-country speaking tour.

Nixon discussed Reagan's "noncandidacy" with newsmen after meeting with Republican state officials and party leaders in the Idaho capital.

"I suppose I should interpret his tour as an expanded move as a noncandidate," Nixon said of Reagan, who was due in South Dakota for a speaking engagement a few hours later.

"The governor told me he is rendering a service to the party," Nixon said, "I accept that. But as he travels he will gain support for President."

"But I am not protesting. Anyone who is a noncandidate has a right to be an active candidate."

Nixon twice described Reagan, whom he will oppose in the May 28 Oregon primary, as "an excellent campaigner and fund-raiser for the party" when asked if he thought the California governor was a candidate for President.

But the former vice president also said Reagan's backers purchased as much television time in Oregon as Nixon bought.

From Boise, Nixon flew to Aberdeen, S.D., where he and his wife, Pat, were greeted by a crowd of about 1,000.

There he called attention to what he termed the "evaporation" of the U.S. trade surplus and said it was cause for a change in national leadership.

Kennedy Blasts 'Affluent' Hoosier Medical Students

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy

locked horns with a group of medical students Friday and fought them to a stand-off.

Kennedy told them off, asked why they were sitting in the medical school while black men are dying in Vietnam, and accusingly pointed out the virtual absence of Negro faces in the audience.

When it was over, the packed auditorium of the Indiana University medical school broke into prolonged applause. It was the third or fourth time in his presidential campaign that the New York Democrat has responded to hostile student questions by trying to make the young people feel uncomfortable about their relative affluence and comfort.

Kennedy and his audience obviously were on different wave lengths from the outset.

"We want Bobby!" someone shouted as he was being introduced.

"No, we don't!" shouted a group in the opposite balcony. Kennedy laughed with the audience, then said: "They've been trying to form a doctors' committee for men in Indiana—and they're still trying."

No applause interrupted Kennedy as he spoke on the "full failure" of America's health care system and proposed a number of potential remedies.

He appeared to sell few of the budding doctors and nurses on his proposal that nonprofessionals — even the hard core unemployed — be trained for the simplest medical services, thus freeing professionals for more demanding work and lowering medical costs.

Kennedy said, "There are people in this country who suffer. I look around this audience and I don't see many black faces, or black men who are going to become doctors. For the poor, it's very difficult to get into the medical profession..."

"You white students sit here in your medical schools while black people are carrying the burden in Vietnam," Kennedy said.

"We'll be going soon!" someone shouted.

"Yes, but you're here now and they're over there," Kennedy said. "The war might be settled by the time you go."

That brought a prolonged burst of booing and hissing.

Again, Kennedy mentioned that "there are not many black faces in this audience."

"Hey," shouted a Negro. "I can see you," Kennedy laughed, "but you sure stand out."

Aquanaut Glorifies Ocean

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

"If you hope to reap the benefits of harvesting the ocean's resources you must plant your mind in the sea now," Cmdr. Scott Carpenter, this nation's only astronaut, said Friday to 3,600 high school and college students attending a Los Angeles oceanographic symposium.

Cmdr. Carpenter, who orbited the earth three times in 1962, and later spent 30 days on the ocean floor in Sealab II in 1965, spoke before two groups of 1,800 students on "The Ocean and the Investor," during the final conference in the Century Plaza Hotel.

The standing-room-only student audience, anxious to learn about "Oceanography as a Career" listened with interest and amusement during the replay of a tape recording of Carpenter speaking from a decompression chamber—and sounding like Donald Duck —while talking to President Johnson after his stay on the ocean floor off La Jolla.

DR. WHEELER J. North, America's No. 1 "wet farmer" told the students about his efforts to recreate the once plentiful kelp beds in the waters off Palos Verdes Peninsula.

Dr. North, a marine ecologist at Caltech used color slides to show the progress being made in replanting and protecting the budding kelp beds against the sea urchin.

Time of South Viet Takeover Flexible, U.S. Says

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration officials said Friday they have no time frame in mind for the gradual takeover by the South Vietnamese army of the major war effort and the gradual reduction of American involvement.

It appears the administration intends to avoid painting itself into corners or facing new charges of overoptimism.

"There is no specific time plan, only a goal," said one official.

"It is more a matter of a change in attitude, a change in approach so that South Vietnamese troops can be moved into more active combat areas."

"We want them to know that the time has come to face up to their responsibilities."

Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford told the annual luncheon of the Associated Press in New York last Monday: "The increased effectiveness of the South Vietnamese government and its fighting forces will now permit us to level off our effort and in due time to begin the gradual process of reduction."

Questions arose about the meaning of the term "in due time" as Clifford views it.

When a reporter sought clarification, Johnson administration officials said "There isn't any pat, specific aim in time." These officials stressed that any new major offensives by the Communists could delay the achievement of the goal.

"Keep in mind that the enemy may change his strategy and course of action," said official who acknowledged that the Communists still have the capacity to mount strong offensives.

Sad experience has shown the perils of firm forecasts of scaling down U.S. involvement.

In October 1963, then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor reported to President John F. Kennedy their view "that the major part of the U.S. military task can be completed by the end of 1965."

By the end of 1965, the United States had moved deep into the war, rather than disengaging.

Last November, Gen. William C. Westmoreland predicted it might be possible to start scaling down U.S. forces within the subsequent two years.

Two months later the enemy jolted U.S. plans by launching his heaviest nationwide offensive of the war, and nothing has been heard since about Westmoreland's two-year prediction.

To prepare the South Vietnamese for shouldering the major burden of the war, the United States is embarked on a largescale program to modernize Saigon's regular and militia forces.

Administration officials said this plan also may have psychological impact on the North Vietnamese leadership. As they view it, the Hanoi regime may now have to look ahead to the prospect of dealing with a well trained fighting force that ultimately could be as big as 900,000 men—a force that, unlike the Americans, "would not pick up and leave."

South Vietnamese forces now total about 700,000 men. The Saigon government has announced intentions to raise another 135,000 troops and there are unofficial reports that some Vietnamese leaders propose an over-all increase of 200,000.

Go-Slow Tactics by Hanoi

a site for preliminary talks. It was the 12th time Nhan Dan has accused the U.S. of foot-dragging since Hanoi proposed Phnom Penh and Warsaw as negotiation sites.

IN LONDON, diplomatic observers with knowledge of the Communists' negotiating tactics cited a number of reasons why the North Vietnamese were in no hurry in the matter of fixing a site for preliminary contacts with U.S. representatives.

They said that, first and foremost, Hanoi is enjoying a limited bombing pause while the fencing continues, with the United States having halted its air attacks on North Vietnamese territory north of the 20th parallel.

The Communists have made no reciprocal gesture on their part and continue to pour arms, supplies and men into South Vietnam, the sources said.

Nearly four weeks have passed since President Johnson made the peace offer, and since American bombing was restricted.

THE FENCING for a site enables Hanoi to feel out the American negotiating mood and to sound out how anxious the United States is to get to the conference table, diplomatic sources said.

By blaming the delay on the United States Hanoi evidently also figures it will win more world public support and stir up more criticism of American policy, they added.

Hanoi apparently has enlisted Moscow's support in this campaign, with Moscow radio and press putting the blame squarely on Washington for the absence of agreement to date on a meeting place.

Studiously by-passed by them, is the fact that the Hanoi-proposed site of Warsaw is a Communist capital, where Russian influence reigns supreme and which affords anything but a neutral setting for delicate talks.

COMMUNIST PROPAGANDA would make it appear that Warsaw is a neutral place, ignoring the fact that Poland has been selected as the spokesman of the Communists on the three-power International Commission for Vietnam.

Finally, the sources said, Hanoi is marking time to prepare for an expected new offensive, or at any rate to regroup its forces after the Tet offensive which failed to achieve its objective of a general rising in the south.

All indications reaching the west suggest that in effect major Communist military movements are under way in Vietnam.

There is a reason to believe that the North Vietnamese leadership is set on a repetition of its strategy of during the 1954 Geneva conference — to keep fighting while negotiating.

cial committee "there will be no solution."

Hurwitz said in that case, he considered it likely the administration would call in police to oust the rebellious students from the captive buildings.

"If the faculty wishes to prevent violence and resolve the entire crisis they should support our demands against a discredited administration which is responsible only to a board of trustees," Rudd said. "The only possibility of violence is from police at the instigation of the administration."

The fiery SDS leader claimed the students were winning the dispute.

"The substantive demands of the demonstrators here are well on their way to resolution," Rudd said. "The gymnasium of 27,500 was built and the university and faculty ties with the Institute for Defense Analysis will certainly be broken."

But Rudd pinpointed the thorny amnesty dispute. "We will not accept judgment or punishment from an illegitimate authority — the administration," he said. "The demand for amnesty must be met."

The fourth day of a sit-in by a militant minority of 1,000 out of a total enrollment of 27,500 was marked by confusion. With rollment of 27,500 was

Times of London Dispatch: New York Times Service

CAY DIEP, South Vietnam — About a third of the young men called up for the South Vietnam army at the III Corps induction center here have to be arrested by the police and brought in under guard because they ignore their draft papers.

The camp commandant, Major Phu, said this was an improvement over last year, when the police sometimes had to bring in four out of every five conscripts. Now about two-thirds are reporting dutifully to the recruitment board after receiving their draft papers.

Phu claimed this was due to an upsurge of nationalist spirit after the bitter fighting at Tet (the Lunar New Year). But there are also penalties for the man who has to be brought in forcibly — he may not become noncommissioned officer and he may not have the option of serving close to his home province. "Willing" conscripts have both privileges.

Vietnam students who have to deal with the draft procedures, say that the system is chaotic. Some who would like to present themselves dare not do so because friends who have tried it have been misclassified and arrested as draft-dodgers. Young men who have deferments are afraid to travel far from home in case they are arbitrarily arrested and sent into the army. Appeals may take months to sort out.

Conscription is on the increase just now as President Nguyen Van Thieu steers towards his goal of an extra 135,000 men in uniform this year to relieve pressure on American units and demonstrate South Vietnam's willingness to defend itself. He has asked the legislature for authority to order general mobilization; but in the meantime he is calling up all men between the ages of 18 and 33 and recalling veterans.

The new conscription rules are pulling in more recruits, to the point where they are hurting the civilian labor pool. But with so many young men desperately unwilling to join the army, and especially to serve in the front line, there is a continuing high rate of desertions. (It is alleged that some commanders conceal desertions from their units in order to pocket the deserters' pay.) With all this, it is an unconscious irony for the government to talk about the Viet Cong recruiting their troops at gunpoint.

Dr. Leslie M. Plimpton, of 110 Pine Ave. told Long Beach police Friday, burglars used a key to enter his office and stole $418.

RAPHIOLEPIS INDICA... An Exceptionally Rugged Shrub

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

You'd have to see the particular group of Raphiolepis indica "Indian Hawthorne" planting to appreciate the ruggedness of these plants growing under adverse conditions.

The soil is decomposed granite that packs hard when dry, doesn't look like it has had any kind of mulch on top surface, and probably no organic material mixed with the soil when the plants first were set out. These plants are growing in full sun, near a rough surface blacktop walk. We wonder if they get sufficient deep drinks of water, too.

Despite these unfavorable conditions and lack of periodic feeding, the Raphiolepis still grow and bloom. The clusters of the pink blossoms are smaller and a weaker pink color. The plants are stunted and smaller than the normal size of cared-for plants.

The reason we're telling you this is to emphasize the hardness of them. Planted properly in an organic-soil mixture, watered deeply as they thirst and fed at least twice a year, they'd be outstandingly desirable shrubs to landscape around the home or grow in containers for the sunny patio area.

Raphiolepis indica "Springtime" blooms from January to April and grows to around three feet. Raphiolepis indica "Enchantress" grows dwarf and compact. The deep pink flowers burgeon forth in late winter and bloom until early summer. Plan to look for these shrubs the next time you visit a nursery.

olepis indica "Enchantress" grows dwarf and compact. The deep pink flowers burgeon forth in late winter and bloom until early summer. Plan to look for these shrubs the next time you visit a nursery.

YOU shouldn't overlook that bermuda, St. Augustine, or hybrid bermuda lawn, that is thickly matted and your feet sink down into it as though you are walking over a thick Chinese rug, and possibly has had some small toadstools grow in it the past year or two.

That thick mat means a "thatch" has built up, no light or air gets in it, and is difficult to thoroughly soak it, because the thatch repels the moisture.

Such a lawn should be scalped. This means the thickly matted lawn should be mowed down to the soil level. A gardener can do it, if he has a heavy-duty power mower, and progressively drops the cutting bar lower after each mowing and catches the clippings so he doesn't have to rake them off. Or, he can hire a professional gardener to scalp it down.

A liquid acid action soil rinse containing a wetting agent and some nitrogen should be applied to that lawn a day or two after it had been deeply watered. This improves soil aeration and rinses down any alkali salts that may have built up in it. Then the feeding action stimulates quicker new growth.

Later when completely grown up, such lawns should be fed a much longer balanced plant food containing a large amount of nitrogen, than one would feed to a fine-bladed grass lawn or dichondra lawn.

Fertilize with a balanced plant food that is formulated for S. California soils, at least twice throughout the summer season and you'll notice a striking difference in the foliage, growth and better blooms next winter!

BLOOMS mean colorful flowers. If you want to have more color when your winter-spring flowering annuals have finished blossoming, don't wait till then to plant some out, because you'll have to wait 60 days or more for the plants to flower.

MOWING a lawn is a form of cutting, whereas pruning means to drastically cut branches of plants or

WIRTZ NOT HER-EX MEDIATOR

U.S. Invests in Jobs

By CHARLES SUTTON

Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, in Los Angeles Friday to announce a series of government-business contracts to hire and train 1,500 hard-core unemployed in this area, has ruled himself out as a possible mediator in the 134-day-old Herald-Examiner strike.

Wirtz, however, was careful to leave the door open to future intervention if he thought it necessary.

LABOR people have been hopeful of bringing Wirtz' influence to bear on the bitter dispute, and one AFL-CIO official said the federation would try to persuade the secretary to change his mind.

"I'm going to talk to Mr. Wirtz tonight," said Sigmund Argwitz, head of the County Federation of Labor.

Meanwhile, an authoritative union source said the Labor Department has already started "doing things" in the dispute, although he did not disclose the nature of the moves.

Wirtz said that — for the time being, at least — he was deferring to the state and federal mediation services, which have been trying to bring the disputing parties together.

The strike against the publication has idled more than 2,000 union members. Publisher George Hearst has managed to continue publishing the paper, however, by employing non-union workers, some allegedly from out of state.

WIRTZ, addressing reporters at the Ambassador Hotel, also said the Labor and Justice departments intend to crack down on agricultural firms allegedly using illegal Mexican farm workers to break a strike by Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Organizing Committee in Kern and Tulare Counties.

The union was prepared to picket Wirtz' Los Angeles appearances Friday and today, but withdrew following last-minute talks with the secretary.

The farm workers have charged the Giumarra Vineyards Corp. with hiring so-called green card holders in violation of a Labor Department ban on the use of foreign strikebreakers.

Earlier, Wirtz announced seven firms had committed themselves to hiring and training 1,500 sorely disadvantaged persons in the Los Angeles-Long Beach area under the nationwide JOBS program—a largely private endeavor by the newly formed National Alliance of Businessmen to make productive workers of the nation's 500,000 hard-core unemployed by 1970.

(JOBS stands for Job Opportunities in the Business Sector.)

Wirtz described the program as "the most important cooperative effort between government and business we've ever had."

UNDER THE program, the government has agreed to pick up the tab on all training costs that go above and beyond a firm's normal training expenses. Thus the Labor Department will pay

Gov. Reagan has a plan to improve the lot of ghetto a firm for pre-vocational training, counseling, medical care and even transportation until the trainee gets on his feet.

Of the seven firms which have signed contracts with the Labor Department, one is the Chrysler Corporation in Paramount. The company has agreed to hire 230 persons and train them as spot welders, assemblers, etc.

Three of the contracting firms will invest $22.1 million in new facilities as part of their agreements. They'll provide employment for

WILLARD WIRTZ

945 persons. The federal investment in the three contracts will be $2,791,000.

The three firms are Torrite Enterprises, Udico Corp. and Sahagen Industries, Inc.

The others are North American Rockwell in downtown Los Angeles, Nu Chrome Seating Co. in East Los Angeles and Northrop Corp. in Venice.

On other subjects, Wirtz said he endorsed both the spirit and the content of the Kerner (Riot) Commission report, said he didn't think the present Congress would pass legislation extending collective bargaining to farm workers, and declared his opposition to compulsory arbitration as a means of settling labor disputes.

Firemen Meet Peril in Phone Strike

If emergency telephone service continues to worsen as the strike against Bell System subsidiaries spreads, Los Angeles Fire Department officials may utilize emergency mobile communications to meet the peril.

"We can operate this entire department from our mobile units," said acting Fire Chief Harold W. Martin.

He also envisaged the use of fire watches via helicopter and said the mobile units and the copters would be expanded to guard the city if the need becomes acute.

At the same time, the chief urged citizens to learn the telephone number of the local fire facility — as well as other emergency numbers — so they would not have to rely on dialing "0" when a crisis occurs.

The addition of 13,000 Pacific Telephone operators to the strike force broadened the range of picketing activity Friday, the lines were up at scores of facilities not previously covered by the Western Electric strikers.

Dean Pollard, assistant vice president for the Pacific company, claimed service 'was' at near-normal levels with supervisory personnel manning switchboards in the absence of the union operators.

But he acknowledged faster service would be obtained by dialing the emergency number sought rather than the "0" digit.

DESTROYER HAS NEW HOME

The Long Beach-based destroyer Halsey Powell will become the property of the Republic of Korea in ceremonies at 10 a.m., today, at Long Beach Naval Station's Pier E.

Capt. William Mackey, chief of staff, will represent Rear Adm. Horace V. Bird, commander of the U.S. Naval Base, Los Angeles, in the ceremonies.

Ambassador Dong Jo Kim will accept the Halsey Powell for the Korean government. The vessel is part of a $100 million aid program pledged the Asian nation by the U.S.

Hearst Sues Labor Group Over Mass Demonstration

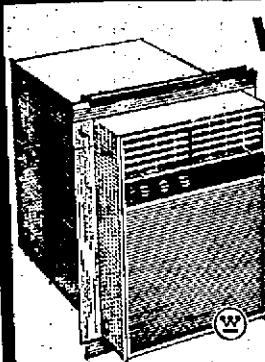

The Hearst Corporation filed suit Friday against the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor demanding $513,877 for damages incurred during a mass demonstration against Hearst's Herald-Examiner last January.

The publication has been strikebound since Dec. 15, but has continued to publish by using nonunion personnel.

The suit, filed in Los Angeles Superior Court, also names the Los Angeles-Orange County Organizing Committee as co-defendant.

The suit charges the two organizations with "planning, inciting, leading and participating" in the demonstration in which fires were ignited within the building and windows smashed.

Hearst says actual damage totaled $13,877, but asked an additional $500,000 in punitive damages.

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

day, Oct. 14, 1849, the two handsome young sons of Hawaii's King Kamehameha III went to the Presbyterian church in San Francisco and "heard a very good sermon by Mr. Williams." That evening, wrote Alexander, "Mr. Judd and myself attended the Baptist church, and heard a good sermon from Mr. Hunt." His brother Lot was "a little unwell," and took a rain check on church.

Let it be thought the journey was all church and no play, the very next entry in Alexander's travel journal disabuses us, for it explains the probably nature of Lot's indisposition.

THE journal, under Monday, Oct. 15, reports:

"This morning, quite late after rising, Lot quite unwell this morning, he is sick abed. After breakfast came into our room, and found the Dr. (Judd, their companion on the journey) gone to have his likeness taken. When he returned, he showed me some Copy of advices and rules which he wished us to lay down and to follow—viz:

"I am sorry to find occasion to make observations on the course you are pursuing and I now do so chiefly with a view of putting you on your guard, and protecting you from the difficulties and dangers which I foresee will follow you if you pursue that course much longer. I was sorry to see you both drink ale on board the Savannah... I was sorry you sat up so late last evening playing Cards, it was Sabbath Morning before you retired, and you appear to have felt the ill effects today of those late hours."

THE rules urged on the boys by Dr. Judd were to drink no intoxicating liquors; not to sit up after 11 at night; not to play cards anymore.

In August 1849, French warships had attacked Honolulu to back up demands for control of Catholic schools, lower duties on French brandy and the use of French as well as English on official documents. Kamehameha III sent Dr. Gerrit P. Judd (of the missionary family) on a mission to France, England and the United States to demand indemnity from France for the damage the warships had caused, and to seek treaties guaranteeing Hawaii's independence from all three powers. The two princes, Alexander Liholihi, 16, and Lot Kamehameha, 18, went along to give them "experience and knowledge of the world and of courts."

ALEXANDER ruled Hawaii later as Kamehameha IV (1854-1863) and Lot as Kamehameha V (1863-1872). Their trip abroad and what they observed greatly influenced their reigns.

The boys were high spirited throughout the journey, and the rules laid down in San Francisco were to go by the board. In Paris, while Dr. Judd was "finding himself very unwell with a sore tooth," Alexander records that "I stopped with two young gentlemen who invited me to their room where I smoked a cigar with them, and our conversation turned on government matters. I did not leave them till half past eleven."

Sure enough, the next morning "Mr. Judd reproved me for being up to such a late hour and without letting him know where I was."

The journal combines hijinks and humor with shrewd observation and boyish naivete. It is a charming record of an important part of the education of a prince. — Nat Høning.

Crowd-Pleasing Wagner at Pavilion

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

The Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra closed its Music Center year—the fourth—Friday night. After a few scattered appearances hither and yon, followed by the annual Rockefeller (read "contemporary music") concerts, the orchestra's 49th season will be ended.

Music director Zubin

Mehta may not be the most artistic putter-together of programs during the season, but he certainly knows how to end one: for his final pair of Pavilion events Thursday and Friday he presented excerpts from Wagner's "Die Walküre"—all of Act I; an orchestral reading of the Ride of the Valkyries; the last half of Act III.

For this project, he brought experienced and respected Wagnerian singers from far and wide. His Bruennhilde was Anita Valkki, the Finnish soprano who participated in Mehta's last Wagner evening in 1966. Siegmund was Karl Josef Hering, a tenor who sings in both Germanies and was making his American debut at this time.

Evelyn Lear (Sieglinde) and Thomas Stewart (Wotan) are Americans who have made careers in Europe, returning to this country, with great success, only in recent years. Andriy Dobriansky (Hunding) was born in the Ukraine, but has sung principally in this country, notably with the now-defunct Met National Co.

Except for Miss Valkki (who sounded a bit foggy and indisposed) and Dobriansky (as yet underdeveloped for a role such as this, the soloists joined Mehta and the orchestra in some exciting, if not flawless, musicmaking.

On Thursday the instrumentalists seemed less prepared for the difficulties and details of Act III than they had earlier, and the Valkyries' Ride lacked the shattering effect it could have made had the conductor utilized all its contrasts, but there was still much to appreciate here.

MEHTA, with enlightened assistance from the singers, realized the vitality and continuity in Act I, and drew from his orchestra a maximum of concentration most of the evening.

Properly presented, of course, there are few works that can excite an audience like those of Wagner, and Thursday's festive crowd proved as susceptible as most.

With good reason, they got most excited about Miss Lear's warm-voiced, meltingly feminine Sieglinde (we will ignore the sometimes wild sounds she makes above the staff), and the really commanding and effortless vocalism of debutant Hering.

At the end, naturally, Wotan dominates, and Thomas Stewart's singing of the final farewell was as moving as one might have wished. There may be many good ways to end a season, but on this occasion the one chosen seemed just right.

ASSEMBLY APPROVES RAPID TRANSIT TAX

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A proposal to increase the sales tax in Los Angeles and San Diego counties by 1/2 cent was in the Senate Friday, after having passed the Assembly by a vote of 51-16.

The additional money raised through the increased levy would help raise funds for construction of a rapid transit system.

Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, who authored the measure, pointed out that even if it passes the Senate, it must still be approved by the voters.

The tax increase would raise an additional $71 million in Los Angeles County and $9.5 million in San Diego County.

Yosemite Park Acts to Ease Congestion

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK — The National Park Service Friday took the first in a series of expected actions designed to alleviate crowded conditions in national parks.

Camping sites were reduced by more than half on the floor of Yosemite Valley to help clear the park of camping and motor vehicle congestion and overcome the taxing of visitor facilities. Similar steps will be taken in other national parks.

The park service has been criticized for failing to take measures to reduce the congestion of growing numbers of visitors each year.

Lawrence C. Hadley, park superintendent, said Yosemite and other western outdoor meccas are undergoing a broad review by several study teams in an effort to give visitors park enjoyment but prevent the overcrowding and the taxing of park sanitary facilities, maintenance and enforcement of regulations.

Another step in what Hadley called "the new look" for Yosemite is a one way road loop that will be started this season on an experimental basis in the eastern end of the valley to help speed traffic through the park.

A park concessioner, the Yosemite Transportation System, also will initiate shuttle bus service as an inducement to visitors to leave their cars parked outside the valley.

Council Meeting in Westminster

Personnel matters, the civic center project and a claims report will be discussed Tuesday when the Westminster City Council meets in special session 7:30 p.m. at the city hall, 14381 Olive St.

AID FUNDS LATE, STATE MAKES LOAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Reagan said Friday the federal government's failure to send California its share of welfare money on time has forced the state to borrow from its own general fund.

A short-term loan of $33.2 million was made Friday from the general fund to the social welfare fund to meet first-of-the-month payments, Reagan's office announced.

State law requires that federal and welfare state money be sent to California's 58 counties no later than April 26. But the governor's office said the federal portion will not be available until May 1.

Reagan Names 9 'Watchdogs' to Police Poverty Programs

Government Study Proposed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, Friday introduced a resolution calling for a legislative study of the complex patterns of local government in Los Angeles County.

The resolution directs the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee and the Assembly Municipal and County Government Committee to make the study in cooperation with the University of California.

new positions Friday to police state programs for minority groups.

Reagan told the Governor's Conference on Human Relations that the idea is an outgrowth of meetings he and his staff have held with minority group members throughout the state in recent weeks.

He said six community relations specialists will be placed in state service centers, and three others will be assigned to the state at large.

"They won't be in Sacramento where they might be inaccessible," Reagan said, "but will be out in the communities."

"We want to know whether state programs are accomplishing what was set out for them."

The nine "watchdogs" will report to Reagan's staff and the Fair Employment Practices Commission, the governor said, to provide a channel of communication between the minority groups and the administration.

Reagan said it is frustrating "to see a policy kind of fade away by the time it gets down to the level where it's supposed to be implemented."

Earlier this week Reagan met with heads of state departments to urge them to take the lead in finding jobs this summer for persons from hard-core poverty areas.

He also has met with labor leaders and educators to tell them of complaints he had heard during the sessions with Negroes and Mexican-Americans.

"Some of the problems, some of the complaints we have heard action is being taken," Reagan said.

"We learned from labor that — yes — they have become aware of the short comings."

"We are now getting meaningful enforcement of laws which haven't meant anything to the people they were supposed to help."

Social Concern Urged

Civil War to Vietnam for Bible CRUSADE

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa. — "To preach the gospel to a hungry man without giving him food is both futile and cruel," Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake said here this week.

An American, Dr. Blake is general secretary of the World Council of Churches, with headquarters in Geneva. Addressing the annual meeting of the U.S. Conference for the World Council of Churches, Dr. Blake strongly supported the involvement of Christian churches throughout the world in the social, economic and political questions of our time.

"It is because I believe the Christian faith most fully comprehend the reality of human life and existence on this planet," he said, "that I believe the churches have the task and opportunity of awakening a responsible world society."

THE ECUMENIST warned that the Church "will be an entirely reactionary force" in our time of rapid social change "unless it attempts to bring the moral insights of the gospel to apply to the moral decisions inherent in the changes being made in world society."

Dr. Blake also stressed some of the pitfalls to be avoided. "Unless Christian economic, social and political efforts are closely related to worship and mission, the churches' unique strength will be lost and its role distorted."

He cautioned against "arrogance and triumphalism in these efforts to serve humanity and warned that Christians are not automatically expert in technical questions. 'The only absolutes of the Christian position are related to the Christian faith that every man is created in the image of God,' he explained.

The World Council of Churches and the Roman Catholic Church "are committed to full co-operation in this area of Christian responsibility," said Dr. Blake.

Foremost among the issues to be faced is the gulf between the rich and the poor. "Unless this economic gulf is narrowed, there will be no basis for world community," he stressed.

The division between the races is another major problem to be faced jointly.

FAMILY TRADITION of over 100 years is carried on by Seaman David G. Green of Costa Mesa, who brought an 111-year-old family Bible with him when he reported to the USS Yorktown, now on duty in the Gulf of Tonkin. Well used good book first saw service when Green's great great grandfather, C. D. White, fought with the Union Army from 1861 to 1865. Great uncle L. W. Green next carried it through the Mexican Border War in 1916, and Seaman Green's grandfather took it to France in 1917. In 1942, the Bible switched services when Green's dad carried it through the South Pacific on the submarine USS Skipjack. Young Green is an internal communications seaman aboard the famed "Fighting Lady."

"Christians do not yet anywhere practice what they profess in the increasingly sharper division of men in ethnic, racial and cultural areas. There will be no world community until the dominant, until now, white people of this world repent of the evil of this racial domination in which they are involved which just now continues to drive the dark skinned peoples into increasing racial hatred, bitterness and division," Dr. Blake said.

TOGETHER the churches of the world must also help overcome "the gulf of ideology that so far makes all attempts to establish world community futile," he stated. Noting some modification on both sides of the ideological division since the Russian Revolution, Dr. Blake noted that this "uneasy balance of co-existence has not yet begun as far as the People Republic of China is concerned.

Although he does not believe that "these deep divisions of mankind will easily be overcome," he does believe that the churches "have an indispensable contribution to make towards the establishment of world community."

SOUTHERN BAPTIST OPEN HOUSE WEEK

Churches Continue 'Encounter' Crusade With Texas Pastors

Texas invades California as almost 1,000 Southern Baptist pastors from the Lone Star State fly here in chartered planes to lead as many California churches in "open house" revival meetings Sunday through the following Sunday, May 5.

It's a follow-up chase of Encounter-California, the massive evangelical effort which saw a week of meetings in Municipal Auditorium as well as 32 other places in the state.

Each one of the 25 Long Beach-Harbor area Southern Baptist churches will be led by a visiting Texas preacher for the week. Music and singing will add to the evangelistic flavor of the 7:30 p.m. meetings, to which the public is invited regardless of church affiliation, or lack of same. In many cases, a nursery will be provided for small children.

The operation is rated the largest movement of ministers from one state to another ever undertaken by a religious organization in the United States.

REV. ARTHUR Howard, pastor of Memorial Baptist of Port Arthur, Tex., will be preaching nightly at the Lime Avenue Baptist Church, 850 Lime Ave., Sunday through the following Sunday as part of the local church phrase of "Encounter - California" crusade.

VISITING evangelist at First Southern Baptist Church of Lakewood, 6540 E. Del Amo Blvd., will be Rev. E. Carr, a former leader of the New Mexico Baptist Convention, now pastor in Groves, Tex. He will preach Sunday, 10:45 a.m., each night at 7:30.

"CONFIDENT LIVING" Went Blind at 41, Was Not Defeated

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

I have a friend who went totally blind at the age of 41. Everyone assumed that his career was ended. Since then about 20 years have passed. He is still totally blind. And this last 20 years have been the period of his greatest achievements. They have been his happiest years as well.

This man happens to be a minister of the Gospel. Since going blind he has been one of the best preachers I ever listened to and a tremendously effective church leader. He has not achieved it by drawing on people's sympathy, either. People forget he is blind, because he himself forgets it and puts all his mental power, feeling and forcefulness into what he is doing. Nobody treats him sympathetically. His blindness is just one of the facts, like when you have some other kind of disability, but it does not enter into his personality. People take him just as he comes and he comes through real strong, believe me.

He is also a good singer and one of the most entertaining storytellers I ever knew. He is a man of irrepressible upbeat spirit. In his city he is one of the most popular men in town.

act handicapped at all.

He once asked me to make a speech. He met me at the airport and escorted me to my hotel. He walked along briskly, seeming to know exactly where he was going. At one point I took hold of his arm, but he shook my hand off. I didn't do it again! When I checked in at the hotel he went with me up to my floor. As we got off the elevator he said, "Turn left."

"How do you know we turn left?" I asked.

"Because all the odd numbers are on the left and all the even numbers on the right," he replied. "Just using your head helps a lot," he grinned.

"You know this hotel?"

"Sure," he said. "I often come here to see people. And I remember the layout, so go to the left."

We walked down the hall. Presently he said, "Here it is." And there was the door with my room number on it.

"How did you know it was right here?"

"I counted the doors as I went by," he told me. "You could do the same if you were alert."

THEN we went to a radio station to give a broadcast. My friend asked the hotel doorman the way to the studio. It was not far so we walked. Presently he said, "Here it is." But I had started to walk past the place.

"How did you know this was the building?" I asked.

"I listened to the directions," he answered. "You see, I have no eyesight — so I have to use my other senses and concentrate and feel my way." He added gaily, "You don't pay attention! That's why you go around confused half the time."

The Roman poet Horace wrote, "Difficulties elicit talents that in more fortunate circumstances would lie dormant." This man after going blind seemed to activate many latent abilities through the inherent power of a faith that couldn't be licked. In the process of weaving blindness into the pattern of his life he made it a more significant and effective pattern than it had been before. You needn't be overcome by any trouble really. For nothing can defeat you.

"It just became a part of my experience," he said, "and I wove it into the pattern of my life." But actually that was understating his accomplishment, for he mastered the disadvantages of blindness so thoroughly that you hardly think of him as a handicapped person. Actually he does not

Story of Dr. Hingson's 'Peace Gun'; Poll of Priests Brings Surprises

OPERATION BROTHER'S BROTHER. By Cyril E. Bryant. J.B. Lippincott Co. $4.95.

The story of Dr. Robert A. Hingson's determination to wage a war on disease throughout the world is one that needs telling — not just to bring acclaim to the good doctor, but to show how much of mankind's suffering can be eliminated.

Dr. Hingson's "Peace Gun" has proved to be one of the greatest inventions of our time.

His concern for his fellow men led him to develop and perfect a jet inoculator that utilizes high pressure instead of a needle and makes painless mass immunization possible at the rate of 1,000 persons per hour.

The story of how he discovered this method and the resulting success is told in interesting detail by author Bryant, a Baptist editor. Evangelist Billy Graham writes the foreword to the book.

Dr. Hingson, professor of anesthesiology at Western Reserve University Hospitals in Cleveland, is founder and director of "Brother's Brother Foundation" an organization dedicated to sending out volunteer medical teams armed with the jet gun inoculator.

Dr. Hingson and his Brother's Brother colleagues spent their vacation time in Liberia in 1962 using the jet gun to fight a smallpox epidemic. They immunized people from border to border, and the smallpox rate fell from 2,000 cases in 1962 to 40 in 1963.

Each year Dr. Hingson takes teams of volunteer medical men on expeditions in the fight to rid the earth of disease. This is an inspiring account of a man's dedication to ease the world's suffering. — Bud Worsham.

"AMERICA'S FORGOTTEN PRIESTS: What They Are Saying" by Joseph E. Fichter. Harper & Row.

Contrary to U.S. Roman Catholic bishops who, in their collective pastoral letter, reprove priests who leave the ministry as radicals and a source of scandal, most fellow-priests would like to see such men given an honorable discharge. Furthermore, they feel that church renewal is moving too slowly in the U.S.

These are among findings reported in a book by Jesuit sociologist Joseph H. Fichter of Harvard University. His book reveals the findings of a survey of Roman Catholic priests in this country, in which over 3,000 "rank-and-file" diocesan priests took part.

The author says that about 64 per cent of the respondents thought the church should allow voluntary resignation or an honorable discharge from the priesthood. Almost all (92 per cent) said that those who had left the priesthood and married should be allowed to return to the sacraments.

Ninety per cent of the priests answered "yes" to the question, "Are you in favor of a definite retirement age for pastors and bishops?"

The statement that "a priest should have a chance to defend his case and to face his accusers before being suspended or otherwise penalized" was approved overwhelmingly (94 per cent). Father Fichter points out that in canon law procedure there is no confrontation or cross-examination and the law "gives the bishops an almost insuperable advantage."

The author also shows that although only a small percentage of dioceses have a full time personnel committee, an intermediary grievance committee, or a diocesan clergy senate, the great majority of the priests were in favor of these innovations.

A preliminary release of results of the study revealed that 62 per cent of the respondents favored the priests' freedom of choice to marry. (In their recent pastoral letter, over 200 bishops here reaffirmed Pope Paul's stand that celibacy "should be seen by clergy and laity alike as God's will for His church at this time.")

BRIEFLY ...

Lutheran Pastors, Negroes in Talks; Big Merger Has Little Impact in L.B.

By LES RODNEY

Nothing sensational, but Long Beach Lutheran churches ARE going about the enormous task of bringing greater understanding of the reality of Negro life to their congregations.

A news release from the American Lutheran Church headquarters in Minneapolis this week was headlined "Church Members Will Study Conditions in Nation's Urban Areas."

National programs often take a long, long time — if ever — to get down to the local unit in a meaningful way. This is at least as true of religious denominations as any other American group.

So we picked up the phone and "spot checked" one ALC church — handsome old Old Saviour's Lutheran on Juniper north of Third.

Was anything happening hereabout in connection with the national emphasis? Did the subject of race actually get talked about — in board meetings, by the congregation?

Pastor Virgil F. Bjerke had a few positive answers.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "next Tuesday all our pastors will meet in Los Angeles, together with some from the other two major synods (Lutheran Church in America and Missouri Synod) to spend a day in dialogue with Negro leaders."

Purpose, he explained, is to "help us get better informed about things, give us an opportunity to share ideas, to have a genuine interchange."

This will be brought back to the church's official board for discussion, and then to the congregation.

"Yes, we have had some discussions in the board, and I have preached on the question of brotherhood," Pastor Bjerke said. "On the whole, our people are quite willing to discuss this and learn. If we are not open to the theme of brotherhood, what is Christianity about? I feel of course that much more must be done in the way of understanding. The question is how to do it in a positive way — a useful way."

The film "A Time for Burning," produced by the Lutheran Film Commission, a study of the race question as it hit an actual church in Omaha, winner of an Academy Award nomination in the documentary field, has been shown several times in our Saviour's Lutheran.

"It was surprising to some people," the pastor commented. "I would say everybody appreciated it to some extent, however."

"Some of us from the midwest, and even some from right here in Long Beach I suppose, are not as aware as we might be of these things. That's where the newspaper can be of great importance."

ECUMENICAL NOTE —

It'll be the "Fighting English" on the Notre Dame campus in the summer of 1969. The Episcopal Church has accepted an invitation to hold its next general convention on the Roman Catholic campus in South Bend.

THE NATION'S six million

Orthodox Christians have long been unhappy at the popular practice of referring to the "three faiths" — Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, since they do not fit into any of those categories. Their split with Rome antedated the Protestant Reformation by some 450 years.

The National Conference of Christians and Jews has moved to rectify the situation, formally recognizing Eastern Orthodoxy as a fourth major faith in America. Amended bylaws will provide for selection of a fourth national co-chairman, an Eastern Orthodox layman, to go along with the usual Protestant, Catholic and Jew.

THERE IS a section of Christian thinking which holds that too much money is spent by the various denominations on imposing buildings in these days. Figures from a recent statistical report from the Southern Baptist Convention would give them some ammunition. Although the Southern Baptists may be the most mission minded of the big denominations, they spent more last year on buildings, $162 million, than they did on missions, $120 million.

WHAT EFFECT will the merger of the Methodist Church and the Evangelical United Brethren this week in Dallas have on Long Beach's lone EUB church? Not much, really, advises Rev. Wendell Jones, pastor of the 300-member church at Temple and 17th.

Since the name of the new communion is The United Methodist Church, the local EUB church will change its name — to Evangelical United Methodist Church. This will not only make clear from which of the two merging traditions it belonged, but will also underscore what Rev. Jones believes to be the church's central mission.

While he does not care to get into controversy about it, Rev. Jones, like Rev. McCandless before him at the same EUB church, takes a less than enthusiastic view of the merger. Some members, he reports, have departed rather than "become Methodists," as they saw it. The losses have not been numerically significant, however.

The negative EUB feeling toward the merger seems more prevalent in this part of the country than back in the Midwest and East.

"We expect to keep on doing what we've been doing," says Rev. Jones. "Our primary task is evangelism."

The original division between the denominations in this country followed English and German language lines. This has long ceased to be a factor. Since structure, discipline (bishops and central appointment of pastors) and Wesleyan tradition are similar, the point of difference in the Southland has perhaps been more along the lines of tone and social involvement. The EUB people think of themselves generally as more conservative, and believe the Methodists have often moved social concerns ahead of evangelical emphasis.

We won't go into the question here of how much truth there may or may not be in this latter kind of generalization, except for this fairly obvious point: The question of the place, the limits and the necessity of "social action" and its relation to the gospel is a continuing controversy not only (not so much, actually) between denominations, but WITHIN every major communion, including the EUB.

Which is not to say that there have been no social action mistakes by Methodists and other Protestants of the sort which understandably concern conservative evangelicals. Whether these mistakes in motion are a greater sin than standing stock still on social concern in today's world — that is a question.

Anyhow, for certain, the Methodist-EUB merger has little immediate impact on the Long Beach religious scene.

SOMEWHAT ALONG the same controversial lines, a recent seminar at Princeton Theological Seminary on "Next Steps for Church and Theology" was told that the "most radical contribution" the church can make to society is a recovery of the "essential Christianity" that motivates unselfish behavior.

Far from being a conservative evangelical, the speaker was Rev. Stephen C. Rose, founder of "Renewal" magazine and a Presbyterian minister who was leading the church to get into the fight for social justice years before it became the thing to do.

What he was warning about was the danger of the church losing its uniqueness in its preoccupation with secular society. "The church," he said, "must neither reject nor idolize secular society ... her fundamental task is to recover her own integrity."

"To put the matter in blunt terms, prayer is as relevant to the Christian life as picketing. Worship is as important as writing letters to congressmen."

The reason America may be too slow to right social wrongs, he maintained, is that too many people, including church people, are afflicted with "hardness of heart, deafness to the Spirit, blindness." Thus, "the most radical contribution of the church to the world will lie in a recovery of essential Christianity and of the sacrificial action which essential Christianity makes possible."

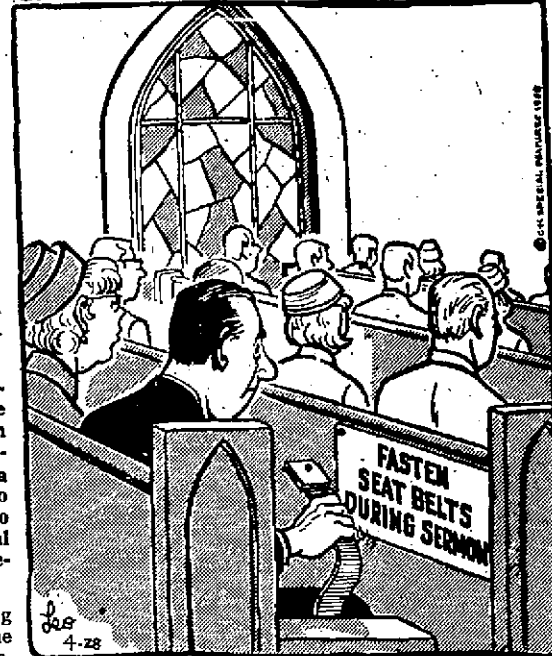

Testimonial Set for Msgr. Scott

More than 500 persons are expected to pay tribute to Rt. Rev. Msgr. George M. Scott, pastor for 20 years of San Pedro's Mary Star of the Sea Parish, at a testimonial dinner Saturday, May 4, at the parish auditorium.

Son of the late attorney, Joseph Scott, prominent Catholic lay leader and "Mr. Los Angeles" whose statue was dedicated in the civic center last year, Msgr. Scott came to the small harbor community in 1946, building the parish from a small condemned school building and a small church to a million dollar church-school complex.

Among dignitaries expected at the dinner, which will be emceed by Judge Walter Binns, will be Msgr. Scott's brother, Superior Court Judge A. A. Scott, Assemblyman Vincent Thomas and Major General Joseph E. Blaymeyer.

CHURCH HUMOR

Lay Institute Set in Compton

The Compton-Paramount-Lynwood Lay Institute for Evangelism, involving an anticipated enrollment of 100 people from seven churches, will be held at Trinity Nazarene Church, 4238 E. Compton Blvd., Compton, Sunday through May 5.

The week-long training course for men, women, and young people has a two fold objective: to teach church members how to live fruitful Christian lives and to communicate their faith to others in 20th Century language.

Negro Methodist Heads District

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rev. Dr. Sumpter M. Riley Jr. was appointed superintendent of the Lima district of the Methodist Church, becoming the first Negro to head a Methodist district in Ohio.

Dr. Riley said his appointment "offers new opportunities in the integrated church." He said none of the Methodist churches in the Lima district is a Negro church. He had been minister of Cory Methodist Church in Cleveland the last 10 years.

Number of Priests, Nuns Decline in '67

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Total U.S. membership in the Roman Catholic Church reached a record high of 47,468,333 last year, but there were significant decreases in numbers of priests, nuns and seminarians and in parochial school enrollment.

The number of converts was the lowest in 14 years. Infant baptisms declined for the second consecutive year.

These statistics were disclosed with publication of the Official Catholic Directory for 1968 by P. J. Kennedy & Sons, New York.

Total U.S. membership last year represented an increase of 603,423 over the previous year for a growth rate of 1.3 per cent, slightly higher than the overall growth rate of the U.S. population, which was about 1.1 per cent.

But for the first time in many years the number of ordained priests declined. The drop was modest, but an annual increase in clergy is needed to minister to a growing membership. In 1966, the number of priests increased by 699.

The director offered no explanation for the decline. The Association for Pastoral Renewal, an unofficial Catholic group seeking modification of the rule of clerical celibacy, said recently it had definite knowledge of several hundred men who quit the priesthood last year.

The new statistics also indicated a possible leveling off in the rate at which nuns are dropping out. In 1966, there was a decline of 4,750 in the number of sisters. Last year's decline was only 278, against a total of 176,341 who remained in religious orders.

Enrollment in seminaries — an index to the future supply of priests — dropped by 5,543, or 13 per cent. This comes on top of a decline of 6 per cent in the previous year.

Enrollment in Catholic elementary and high schools declined by 218,830 to a total of 5,179,000. The number of public school children receiving religious instruction in centers of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine increased by 311,514.

The number of converts was 110,717, a decrease of 6,761 over the previous year, and the lowest since 1953. Infant baptisms totaled 1,139,248, a decrease of 51,594.

On Palm Sunday, just prior to the morning worship, I wrote a short tribute to a young man killed in Viet Nam. He died defending his country. I felt then, and I still feel that he was doubly worthy of such a tribute.

Since then requests have come from all over the United States for copies of the tribute. It is reproduced here because we feel that it is what so many felt but no one else said.

Dr. H. Frank Collins

I MOURN FOR HIM TODAY

Last week a man fell in battle. A man dedicated and devoted to peace and freedom. A man who was man enough to give his life for a cause that he believed in.

I MOURN FOR HIM TODAY.

He did not die in a plush motel in one of America's most beautiful cities. He died in the horrible steaming jungles of a filthy, rotten, poverty-torn nation, thousands of miles from his home and country. He died in the arms of a buddy who believed in the same things he did — the right to live in a country where free men could assemble in worship — where little girls and women felt free to walk to Sunday School in their new frocks and bonnets. He died to give to men of all color the right for a free education in a state that would provide it with small cost — and limited only by the self-limitations of the individual.

I MOURN FOR HIM TODAY.

He died defending a country that has done more for the individual than any nation on earth. He did not curse the parents that bore him, loved him, and provided for him and gave him far more than they ever had themselves. He did not curse the society that taxed itself to the hilt to care for its poor and its aged. He did not defect from the country that provided its scenic highways, parks and luxuries that he and his fellow-men might enjoy the good things of life. He died as an example of civil obedience.

I MOURN FOR HIM TODAY.

No self-seeking politician sent a chartered jet for his widow to accompany his body home. He was shipped home in a government-provided casket, and Uncle Sam provided one non-commissioned service man as an escort. He did not have a large funeral. A soldier sounded taps on a near-by slope as his body was laid to rest.

I MOURN FOR HIM TODAY.

No cities were burned and placed under martial law because he was shot. Our nation's Capital was not endangered by his death. It was, rather, made a little more secure by the supreme price that he paid to make it safe. The flag of our country was not lowered to half-mast. In the eyes of those who know the true value of such a sacrifice, it seemed to fly higher than ever over the "Land of the free and the home of the brave."

I MOURN FOR HIM TODAY.

Those who would vindicate his death today can be heard throughout our land as they organize into what patriots have always called our Military Service. They take up arms — rifles — bayonets — tanks and planes — but they aim them at the enemy — not their own country.

I MOURN FOR HIM TODAY.

There were no newspapermen nor TV craws to cover the events of his death nor his funeral. No dignitaries cancelled trips that might save the lives of his buddies to attend his funeral. But every statesman and politician ought to take at least one moment to slip silently to his knees and say, "Thank God for a great man." His contribution to our country's freedom is not known by his own generation. It is known only to God.

A GREAT MAN FELL IN BATTLE.

Top Evangelists Concentrate on Overseas

Old Style Crusades Dying? Police Academy

A week of old style evangelistic meetings concluding tonight in Municipal Auditorium is rated a success by the sponsoring Southern Baptist churches of the area, with attendances over 2,000 each of the six nights.

But mass evangelistic crusades may be dying out in this country, with its urbanized, impersonal cities. Attention of top evangelists is being turned overseas to more receptive shores.

In the past year, Billy Graham, evangelist number one, led only one crusade in the United States (he was in Australia last month).

The man rated by many right behind Graham, Rev. John Haggai, is headed for Indonesia for a five-week crusade of preaching and teaching.

ATTITUDES and conditions have curbed such undertakings domestically, says Rev. Haggai, whereas to people overseas in less industrialized cultures, it's a new, imported approach.

They're considered more responsive to it than people in this country where the method had its origins in the big revival meetings of the last century.

"There are fewer crusades," Haggai adds. "They are not as long as formerly. And you don't see as many men in their 20s and 30s going into mass evangelism as before."

Although he deprecates the trend, and maintains steps should be taken to rejuvenate mass evangelism in this country, the Atlanta-based Haggai Evangelistic Association is shifting increased activities abroad.

That "does not mean that we are giving up crusades in this country," he gradually lessened proportion to religious drives overseas, he said, adding:

"Jesus Christ is not a 'national god.' He said, 'Go into all the world.'"

As part of a "world outreach" program, Rev. Haggai expects to spend a third of his time in overseas crusades this year, and by 1970, he plans to spend two thirds of his time abroad. He also has a one-week interdenominational crusade in the National Evangelical Church in Beirut, Lebanon, May 26-June 2 and a city-wide drive in San Diego, Calif., next September.

SIMILAR patterns have developed among other prominent evangelists, such as Rev. Bob Pierce, of World Vision.

In the post-World War II period, 20 years ago, dozens of organizations had evangelists on the road, holding city-wide campaigns. Few still are operating.

As for reasons behind the decline, Haggai said mass evangelism has become "very expensive" in this country. Americans "are bombarded with a multitude of stimuli," he said. "If you get their attention, you must have saturation exposure, and this costs money."

Moreover, he said, "many pastors and other religious leaders believe the way to communicate the gospel is on an exclusively man-to-man approach. There has been a de-emphasis on public speech. The watchword today is dialogue."

However, he maintains large-size evangelistic gatherings are vital, and action should be taken to reinforce them — by denominations, foundations and others.

"I have read history in vain to discover any great spiritual awakenings that did not involve large public meetings," he said. "To say mass meetings are not needed in evangelism is like saying that since elections are won or lost in the precincts let's do away with political rallies. Rallies prepare the precinct workers — in evangelism as in politics."

HE SAID "a better way must be found to finance the huge costs of saturation exposure and other aspects of mass evangelism." He suggested both denomina-

Mixed Marriage Easing Seen

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Roman Catholic and Anglican church leaders have agreed to give sympathetic consideration to ways of solving problems that arise in the upbringing of children of mixed marriages.

A Vatican announcement said particular consideration would be given to the problems arising when a Catholic's pledge to raise his children as Catholics is "unacceptable to the non-Roman Catholic party on the grounds of conscience."

It did not indicate, however, that the Catholic Church was prepared to lift its requirements that the children of a mixed marriage be raised as Catholics.
